Tonight's 'Maine' Storylines

The Mariners and Railers return to play after both missing the 2020-21 season due to the North Division's COVID-19 opt out...It's the first game at the Cross Insurance Arena since March 10th, 2020 (591 days)... Tonight will be the professional head coaching debut for Ben Guite, who was named the second bench boss in Mariners history back in August, as Riley Armstrong took a job with the Lehigh Valley Phantoms of the AHL...It's also the first game in the era of the new affiliation between the Mariners and the Boston Bruins...For the Railers, head coach David Cunniff begins his first full year behind the Worcester bench, taking over in November of 2019 for Jamie Russell...The Mariners and Railers are competing for the "VIP Rivalry Cup" this season...Defenseman Connor Doherty jumps from one side of the rivalry to the other, traded from the Railers to the Mariners in exchange for future considerations this past summer...Defenseman John Furgele is now on the Railers side...Forwards Eduards Tralmaks and Brendan Robbins will become the first UMaine alums to play for the Mariners...The Mariners have opened the season at home now in all three seasons of the franchise, having lost the first two to Adirondack, 6-3 on 10/13/18 and 5-2 on 10/11/19.

The Mariners and Railers met twice last weekend, splitting a pair of exhibition games. The Railers claimed a 5-3 win on Friday at The Colisee in Lewiston, while the Mariners rebounded for a 3-1 road win on Saturday. The Mariners have dominated the home portion of head-to-head with the Railers, with an all-time record of 11-1-1-0 against Worcester in Portland. Overall, the Mariners lead the all-time series with a mark of 17-6-1-1. The Mariners and Railers will meet again tomorrow night in Worcester for Maine's first road contest and Worcester's home opener.
